Pamamanhikan

Filipino women are expected to be pakipot (playing hard to get) because it is seen as an appropriate behavior in a courtship dance. By being pakipot, the girl tells the man that he has to work hard to win her love. It is also one way by which the Filipina will be able to measure the sincerity of her admirer. Some courtships could last years before the woman accepts the man's love.

BAIXARDOC

Ala dalaga (Filipino) is someone who is mahinhin (modest), with good character and does not show her admirer. She is also not supposed to go out with several men. The opposite of mahinhin is malandi (flirt), which is taboo in Filipino culture as far as courtship is concerned.

•Igorot 'nationalism': From shame to pride

3rd Igorot International Consultation held in Baguio City on April 26 to 28 "Who are the Igorots?"

Citing her own experience as a student in Manila, Botengan also traced the time when Igorot would refer to someone who was "dirty, unwashed and not with kinky hair and tall." The latter would also refer to someone "who beats her while being in the streets of Manila."

An old dictionary meaning referred to Igorot as "barbarian, uncouth or uncivilized." But journalist Ramon Dacawi, an Ifugao, said Igorot should be redefined as "good-looking, sturdy, rich or intelligent."
